This Month's Program – Susanne Barrymore on Defoliation

This month brings Susanne Barrymore, long time club member and well-known bonsai practitioner, on the topic of defoliation. This technique, when properly applied to deciduous trees, can have many benefits. Susanne has practiced defoliation of deciduous trees for as long as your editor has been affiliated with the club and the results bear her out. It is commonly believed that defoliation gives finer ramification and better fall color, if timed properly. If you have seen Susanne's trees at the Winter Silhouettes show, you will know she's onto something. Expect to learn the best timing, appropriate techniques, suitable species, and overall benefits of defoliation for bonsai.

Last Month's Program – Ann Erb on Azaleas

Ann Erb's program was full of new and useful tidbits for anyone interested in azaleas in general (and satsuki – pronounced like "sat-s'ki" – especially). She says that the approach to satsuki azalea culture has changed considerably in the last few years: for example, from keeping them shaded to growing in full sun, and from keeping them damp, to letting them almost dry between waterings. There are some 1,200 recognized varieties of satsuki and the range of growth habit, flower shape and size, and leaf size is staggering.

Key management tips: remove flower buds in early spring to allow the plant to put energy into foliage growth (only let it bloom once every three years and, even then, remove extra buds before bloom and all flower buds after about 2/3 have bloomed); wire in the winter for most varieties; in fall and winter, remove all shoots that emerge at the base of the flower buds except two in horizontal positions; remove all down-pointing and up-pointing shoots; remove all weak shoots whenever they emerge as they will never become strong (no flower bud? Remove it!); in fall and winter, remove larger leaves along braches, but leave a few small leaves at the tip of last year's growth to let light into the interior of the tree; seal all cuts, no matter how small; take special care with large cuts (do not use concave cutters that leave a hollow as that is an invitation to rot); seal large cuts with waterproof glue; copper is toxic to azaleas, use aluminum wire exclusively; twist branches to bend when wiring as this helps to prevent (but may not eliminate) breakage. There was more, but you had to be there to take it all in.

Call for Trees!

Start planning what trees and companion plants you plan to show. Think ahead about stands, if you might need one. Collect moss, top dressing, etc. Clean your pots. Do whatever it takes!
